

Brilliant Watch Display Dazzles Lions

Old Father Time was the chief subject at the Frankfort Lions club monthly dinner and meeting at the Frankfort Village Hall Tuesday evening when the Lions witnessed a very gorgeous display of time pieces dating as far back as the 16th century in charge of Harry Yaseen, prominent jeweler and world traveler of Chicago Heights.

Program chairman Lion Wm. Semmler introduced Mr. Yaseen whom he has known for quite some time. In his response Mr. Yaseen in a very clever manner stated that he found time heavy on his hands and then pulled two huge watches out of his vest pockets. He then asked the Lions to gather around a large desk covered with a black cloth. A strong electric light shone directly on this cloth. Next Mr. Yaseen assisted by his son Richard, opened a virtual treasure chest and placed a most dazzling array of time pieces on the black cloth. Many of these ancient watches were studded with diamonds and pearls and glittered in the bright light. After Mr. Yaseen had placed a most wonderful array of time pieces worth many thousands of dollars on display he gave a most graphic and highly interesting, running description and account of each watch.

Some of the watches had exquisite porcelain cases all hand painted in most beautiful blended colors depicting nature and hunting scenes. Many of the watches had three cases.

One time piece had a very ornate case and the dial or face of the watch showed a miniature stage and at the bottom of the watch face were the figures of two angels. When wound and running the watch would strike each minute when the figures of the two angels would strike a mallet against tiny gongs. When the hour hand came into position Father Time appeared on the stage and struck a larger gong in quite a lusty manner.

Then there was the music watch made in Paris. A tiny music box roll or plate was set in the case with the works of the watch and at a given point started to play tinkling tunes.

Another oddity was a watch in the shape of a beetle, one in the shape of a Masonic emblem and others in shapes of musical instruments. There was one piece once the property of a Turkish Pasha, showing his picture painted on a most delicate colorful background. The works of these watches were mostly made in Switzerland and the outer cases and assembling was either done in Paris or in England.

There was a huge pocket watch having all the appearance of a three decker sandwich and then came the thinnest watch known as the wafer watch hardly as thick as a 25 cent piece. A few early American watches were also shown. They too, were creations of master craftsmen. Several of the most exquisite specimens shown were worth $3,000 each.

All in all such a wonderful collection of artistic craftsmanship as Mr. Yaseen presented has never before been seen in Frankfort. Mr. Yaseen has a total of 350 watches in his collection in addition to a number of antique clocks. Most of this extremely valuable collection was collected by Mr. Yaseen in travels in Europe and Asia. Mr. Yaseen was born in Russia, the son of a jeweler and has been associated with the jewelry business all his life and is a professional jeweler as well as a collector and knows the value of rare timepieces. His collection is one of the finest, not only in Illinois, but perhaps in the whole United States.

Clarence Denherder, a special field representative of the Lions International gave a brief talk on the growth of Lionism and the wonderful work being done.

The Lions further discussed plans for their annual Christmas party to be held in the parlors of the St. Peter's Evang. church the night of Tuesday, Dec. 18th. A Christmas gift exchange will feature the party.

A large attendance of Lions members partook of the very sumptuous dinner served by the wives of members of the Lions Club. The ladies were given a rising vote of thanks for their most excellent culinary skill.

NEW LENOX BRIDGES REPORTED IN BAD SHAPE

Mr. Hafka, the Highway Commissioner, described some of the bridges as in serious need of repairs. They will have to be repaired at the earliest opportunity or the taxpayers will soon be faced with the necessity of putting in new bridges.

The people in the village of New Lenox share equal responsibility with the people in the rest of the township and therefore have every reason to be very much interested in the condition of the bridges. Here is a good example: The center pier of the Marley bridge (New Lenox Township) has been washed out. It is estimated that $3,500 will repair it so that it can be used many more years. Neglect of this work will impair the use of the bridge and in its weakened state high water may damage it beyond repair. A new bridge will cost about $35,000 or ten times the cost to repair it now.

Furthermore, an accident on the bridge resulting from an overload, for example, can result in a judgment against the people. (Often juries decide in favor of the plaintiff even though the plaintiff was at fault because the people's neglect represents a greater fault.) The Court will then force the taxpayers to pay the judgment and put in a new bridge if the old one can't be repaired.

The present Road and Bridge tax is not enough to resurface the worn roads and repair the bridges. A special Road tax is proposed and will be submitted to the voters early next year. The amount will be 30 cents on a hundred, assessed valuation. This means that anyone paying $40 tax in 1945 will pay $3.51 more. Those who paid less than $40 will pay less than $3.51. The extra tax will be for four years, no longer. This will give Mr. Hafka $6,000 a year to do the much needed extra work. The regular Road and Bridge tax for 1945 amounted to $6,200 and it doesn't matter how the money is stretched it will not provide more than bare maintenance for 70 miles of roads and bridges.

Frankfort Mayor Opens Appliance Store

Mayor George Sangmeister of Frankfort has about completed plans for the opening of an electrical appliance shop in the old Citizens Bank Building in Frankfort. In commenting on his new venture, Mayor Sangmeister stated:

"In a short time I will open an electric appliance store known as the Sangmeister Electric Sales located in the former Citizens Bank building in Frankfort.

"It will be my desire to serve all with the best priced merchandise available. And not the first to be displayed which soon will be replaced by new models with new features. Then too, you should guard against larger dealers and solicitors who are anxious to sell any merchandise that is available now, and later change to another line. Think what this will mean should you later need service. Should you be in the market for any appliance consider these facts.

"I have for prompt delivery and installation Consolidated Automatic Stokers. Ask to see an amazing demonstration which will convince you."

Letter To Editor

New Lenox, Illinois,
November 18, 1945

Mr. Wm. Semmler, Editor
The News-Bulletin, Mokena.

Dear Sir:

Incorporation of New Lenox would bring us street lights, sewers, water, improved streets and sidewalks and a zoning ordinance.

It would also bring greatly increased taxes and bond issues to pay for these.

Why don't the people who desire these things move to Mokena where they are already available and let the majority who voted against incorporation alone.

Joseph Alton, Box 31
New Lenox, Ill.

FRANKFORT PTA HEARS TALK ON INDIAN LORE

Members of the Frankfort School PTA and guests including many school children enjoyed Mrs. Stuart Patterson's informative talk on Indian lore given at the Frankfort school auditorium Wednesday evening at the society's regular monthly meeting.

Mrs. Patterson, whose home in Olympia Fields is also a museum housing four other major collections, started to collect Indian relics 18 years ago and since then has lectured on the American Indian to about 30,000 PTA and other club members. She brought with her a part of her collection which included a number of beautiful rugs woven by the Navajos, best known for their artistry; baskets made by the Hopis and pottery of the Sioux, some pieces of which were more than 2,000 years old. Her description of an authentic Indian wedding ceremony and her demonstration of an Indian mother calling her child with the aid of the tom-tom was especially entertaining. She closed her talk expressing the hope that each person in the audience would have gained a deeper sense of respect and love for the Indians, the only true Americans, whose religion, summarized in a short sentence was, "You Get What You Give."

Walter Heisner opened the meeting with the pledge to the flag and turned the meeting over to Mrs. Clarence Wise who presided in the absence of Mrs. Herbert Folkers, president, and Miss Viola Lankenau, vice president. CHEVROLET DEALERS FACE BIG EXPANSION PROGRAM

Preparing for the arrival of the new 1946 model automobiles, and for expanding demands of service, Chevrolet dealers throughout the country are in the midst of the greatest expansion program in Chevrolet dealer history, Ed Hedner, national director of service of the Chevrolet Motor Division, General Motors Corp., said today.

More than 250 dealers in most of the 48 states have completed or are in the process of erecting new buildings, additions to present quarters, or modernization of existing facilities, according to information that has cleared through the Chevrolet central office. Others are in the planning stage.

It is known that scores of additional building programs are under way among the dealers who have not yet reported their activities to the central office.

With this expansion program, the dealers are preparing for expected volume sales as new car production increases, and for a continuing increased demand for cars. Thus they are showing their confidence in the automobile business in the coming years.

It is estimated that, when the expansion program is completed, 10 million square feet of floor space will have been added to the Chevrolet dealers' facilities.

BARUCH PREDICTS INFLATION

WASHINGTON. — Elder Statesman Bernie Baruch revealed some interesting figures on inflation recently in an off-the-record session with 14 younger congressmen at his Shoreham hotel apartment. Baruch's prediction was that the nation was hell-bent for inflation—and soon.

Piecemeal increases in wages, profits and the cost of living have been uneven, Baruch said, with wages lagging behind. For that reason he no longer favored his prewar idea of a freeze on both prices and wages. Our only hope, said the elder statesman, is that we can weather the next six to nine months without running into serious inflation. If we do that, our chances of a strong recovery from the war boom are good.

"The huge pent-up demand for products which we will see during the next nine months is a very serious threat," said Baruch, stressing the importance of holding prices down.

He amazed his listeners by saying that he is completely opposed to tax reduction of any nature at this time. "Not only does the government lose needed revenue, but it is an unhealthy thing for our general economy," argued Baruch.

Rep. Andy Biemiller of Milwaukee asked what Baruch thought of the statement by General Motors' president C. E. Wilson that if wages are raised 30 per cent, prices must go up 30 per cent. Baruch talked at some length on the general question of rising prices, but gave no direct answer. Finally, Biemiller repeated his question.

"I'm afraid I can't agree with Mr. Wilson," Baruch said.

WAGE NOT PRICE INCREASE

"Isn't it true that industry can give a 30 per cent wage increase without having to raise prices more than about 7½ per cent?" Biemiller persisted.

"You are approximately right," Baruch agreed. "I believe the figure you may have heard is actually 8½ per cent."

Baruch also told his guests that he felt we were making a mistake in speeding manpower demobilization. "With the world in its present situation," he said, "it seems to me it would be wiser to proceed slowly with demobilization, in order that we not weaken ourselves at a time when power is apparently still an important thing."

He agreed also with an idea proposed by one of his guests, Estes Kefauver of Chattanooga, to have cabinet members and other high officials appear on the floor of congress where they can be questioned by congressmen. Such a practice would make for much greater cooperation between the executive and legislative departments, Baruch said.

Present in addition to Biemiller and Kefauver were Representatives Albert Gore and Percy Priest of Tennessee, John Sparkman of Alabama, Mike Mansfield of Montana, Henry Jackson of Washington, Jerry Voorhis and Chet Holifield of California, Bob Sikes of Florida, Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, Bob Ramo of Georgia, and Jamie Whitten and Arthur Winstead of Mississippi.

CHURCHILL IN DEFEAT

Winston Churchill recently told friends how he felt after his defeat in the British elections. The first few days after his defeat were terrible, Churchill confessed. The very next morning he arose and fretted because there were no diplomatic cables to read. Through the war, his first morning chore was to read the top-secret military and diplomatic cables from all over the empire; and he paced up and down intermittently for days, fretting because there were no cables coming in and because, though he felt things were going wrong, there was no one to whom he could send cables to straighten things out.

"Finally I went down to the south of France," Churchill confessed. "They treated me well there. I painted several pictures and they fed me some wonderful food. But still I couldn't get over this idea of no cables coming in and no cables going out. Each morning I fretted when I read the papers. But finally one morning I felt better. It suddenly dawned on me that I wasn't prime minister any more and it wasn't my worry, and I've felt better ever since."

Note — Churchill's health is touch and go. His doctor has ordered him to cut down on his food and drinking.

SENATE ELDER STATESMEN

Here are the ages of the elder statesmen of the senate: Bankhead of Alabama, 73; George of Georgia, 67; Thomas of Idaho, 71; Willis of Indiana, 70; Capper of Kansas, 80; Reed of Kansas, 74; Barkley of Kentucky, 68; White of Maine, 68; Walsh of Massachusetts, 73; Bilbo of Mississippi, 68; Murray of Montana, 69; McCarran of Nevada, 69; Bailey of North Carolina, 72; Moore of Oklahoma, 74; Green of Rhode Island, 78; Austin of Vermont, 68 and McKellar of Tennessee, 76.

PUBLIC WILL BE FAIR

WHEN FACTS ARE KNOWN HAS INDUSTRY SOMETHING to hide from the public? Is there something in a discussion of its relations with labor it would not want the public to know? Personally I am convinced there is nothing the industrial executives wish to conceal.

Over the years I have known a considerable number of industrial executives, and, with but few exceptions, they have had no real conception of mass psychology. They have been capable men in their own lines; they have piloted their concerns to industrial success, and they did their jobs largely by keeping still, and saying little. They knew their jobs; they are worthy of the salaries they draw as business executives, but they do not understand the psychology of the John and Mary Doaks that constitute the great majority of the American public.

Today, more than at any previous time in our history, the people of all classes insist on knowing the inside of things that affect themselves in the way of wages or prices. They want to know the costs of producing the commodities they buy, and the earnings of the concerns that make these goods.

As a general average the people are fair. They do not object to the payment of what might be considered large salaries to men of ability; they believe investors should have a reasonable return on the money that is supplied to provide plants and tools for industry.

To the average American a balance sheet is unintelligible. At the best it is merely the word of a corporation executive, and that, to the John Doaks, proves nothing. If the facts and figures a balance sheet contains could be openly discussed and analyzed the corporation would have a better standing with the average John and Mary Doaks, American citizens who vote.

We have reached a place where our free enterprise system is in danger. Those who would replace it with a form of state socialism find in any refusal of industry to openly discuss and analyze the operations of industry a weapon fitted to the deeds they would do. Out of such refusal they create suspicion that breeds difficulties.

The part of government is to place responsibility on both management and labor, and in adjudicating any difference between them, to see that both sides lay all the facts on the table, face up. The John Doaks feel the operations he helps to finance, and whose products he buys, should be above suspicion, as it is in all probability, but he is not sure when management says "no" to a request for a look inside.

With our free enterprise system, our way of life, in danger industry cannot afford to create the impression of a "public be damned" policy.

ON HOLDING UNIONS LEGALLY RESPONSIBLE

WHEN THE EMPLOYER makes a contract between himself and the legally constituted authority representing those who work for him, to pay his employees $1.00 an hour, and then reduces that pay to 90 cents, that employer has broken a contract. Any court in the land would consider, and hold, his actions as such. The court would force compliance with the terms of the contract by that employer. When his employees feel the time is opportune to demand $1.10 an hour, and all, or any part, refuse to work unless the higher rate is paid, that, too, is a violation of a legal contract. In that case, the courts would not, or could not, force compliance. The legally constituted authority — the union — that made the contract is not responsible under any present law. That is the capital and labor situation in one paragraph.

IN A STATEMENT to its employees one of the large processing corporations said wages were paid out of profits. That is not a fact, and can create a wrong impression. Wages are a part of the cost of production, as are materials, taxes, management, power, light, heat, interest on investment, and other items without which the concern could not operate. They must be paid out of sales. Profit is what is left after all costs of production and sales have been paid. The corporation that made that statement paid as wages $14,220,746. After all the expense of production and sales were met there was left, as a profit, $1,703,463. That profit was reinvested to create more jobs.

NOW THAT THE WARS are over what are we to do with the army of generals we have on our hands? We can demobilize the rank and file of the army, and again make "mistakes" of the men. But once a general, always a general. They will be more numerous in the future than were Kentucky colonels in the past, even though some of them may be driving trucks or selling ribbons.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION is better than a pound of broken bone.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache; rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with stinging and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

AN INNER SANCTUM MYSTERY
STARRING ARAB AND ANDY BLAKE WNU FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lt. Andy Blake of Operations was joined in Washington by his wife, Arab, who took a job with Ordnance. Arab secured a room on "Q" street, which she believed to be the headquarters of German agents. Andy got into a fight with Joey, one of the roomers, and a neighbor, Jones, knocked Joey out. The next night Andy went over to the house to look around. He checked on Joey's car and found out that Joey was using considerably more gas than his A card would allow. He then heard a scream across the street. It was Renee, and when Andy rushed up, Jones rushed toward him to attack. They started to fight. Renee stepped in and made them stop.

CHAPTER VI

I felt his fingers stroke across my wrist and miss a grip.

A woman's voice lashed at us. "Stop it!"

I danced back a couple of steps and saw her come out from behind the tree. It was Renee Fielding. She gripped the man's shoulder and shook him. He straightened and turned his head slowly to her, almost as if he had been awakened. Pale starlight washed over his round polished skull and glittered blankly on his glasses. It was the man Joey Raeder worked for; the man who had laid Joey out cold two nights ago.

He dropped his hands to his sides and turned to me. "I beg your pardon, Lieutenant," he said. "I was very hasty. You came at me fast and I failed to note your insignia." "A woman screamed," I said. "Who was it? You, Mrs. Fielding?" "Yes. Something ran through the bushes. A rabbit, perhaps. Or a cat. I am nervous."

"Good night," I said, and started to leave.

"Wait a minute," the man said. "Wait, Lieutenant." His voice was calm now. The urgency had drained out of it. "Please wait. I have not apologized properly for my actions." "It's O. K.," I said. "I stumbled into something that wasn't my business."

"But really," he said, "I am very sorry. It might have been bad. I tried to throw you into that tree. It might have broken you. I do not think that your body missed it by more than a foot."

"Better luck next time." "Oh, but there will be no next time. You acted very gallantly and it is too bad that there was no lady in distress. But you were also very foolish."

"You're telling me." "Yes, foolish. Never run at an enemy that way. Come more slowly. Otherwise he may use your momentum to throw you or..." He paused, picked up a dead branch. "Can you break this?" he asked.

It was an inch thick and the wood was still sound. I tried to snap it in my hands, failed, then started to break it over my knee.

"Oh, no," he chuckled, taking it from me. "Let us pretend that this branch is a man's neck. You cannot reach it with a knee while he is on his feet. We must do this." He braced one end of the branch on the ground. The edge of his right palm chopped at it. There was a crack. The branch snapped.

He dropped the broken stick, lost interest in the subject. "I believe," he said, "Renee called you Lieutenant Blake. My name is Jones."

I was so wrapped up in my mental game that I said automatically, "Glad to meet you, Plain Mr. Jones."

"It is Mr. Jones! Not Dr. Jones. Not Professor Jones. Not Plain Mr. Jones!" I grinned and said, "Sorry." But now I was happy. I had him properly tagged. I could make people sit up and take notice when I talked about a guy with the sinister name of Plain Mr. Jones. He had carried the thing too far. You would immediately suspect a guy who called himself Plain Mr. Jones, just as you would start counting the silverware if somebody introduced himself as Honest John Smith.

Renee said, "Lieutenant Blake comes over to visit one of my girls—Miss Reynolds."

He said, "Oh, yes," and nodded. Then his shiny forehead creased, and he asked, "You... you visited her tonight?"

It was interesting. He knew who Arab was and he knew she was out tonight. The worried note in his voice hinted that he was getting suspicious of me. I didn't care for that. "No," I said hastily. "I haven't seen her tonight. I was out this way visiting friends and thought I'd give her a hail on my way back." "I believe that she is out with Joey," Renee said.

"Oh." "I am sorry that we had a misunderstanding about the house rules last night," she said. "We do have to have rules, you understand."

"Yes, sure. Well, if she isn't in I'll run along."

Plain Mr. Jones said, "Why do you not invite the Lieutenant to the picnic tomorrow night, Renee?"

"Oh. Do... do you think...?"

"Of course. Tell him about it."

She said, almost reluctantly, "The weather is still so nice that I decided to give the girls and their friends a picnic supper in Rock Creek Park tomorrow night. We have picnics there every once in a while and the girls seem to like them very much. All of us go. Even Sadie, to help with the serving. I would like you to come."

"I'll try," I said, "but of course work might pile up and—"

"Please do try." She gave me directions how to get there, and added, "There are always extra girls, so if... if..."

"Sure, I understand. Joey's giving me tough competition, isn't he? I'll make it if I can. And thanks."

After dinner in the cafeteria I got the car and invested part of my A ration in a drive to Rock Creek Park. A car would be handy for the program I had scheduled. I parked some distance away from the picnic site, and crept close. My woods-manship would probably have deafened an Indian, but at least I got close without dislodging any boulders or snapping any dead trees underfoot—and besides nobody at the picnic was paying any attention.

Everybody from the house on Q Street was present. I peered out from the shadow of a tree and spotted Renee and my pal Sadie and all the CAF twos and threes and Arab and Joey. A fire blazed in the dusk. Arab had her head thrown back, laughing at Joey, and her hair tossed rippling golden reflections back at the fire. Joey looked like the kind of guy they fix up with a coconut palm and a sarong and a featured role opposite Dottie Lamour. He seemed to be doing all right in the role he had right now.

I went back to the car and drove down Rock Creek Parkway toward the turnoff to Q Street. My reconnaissance had produced the information I wanted: the house on Q Street was deserted.

A block away from the house I pulled to the curb, switched off the motor, and began to change costume.

I shivered.

A service cap flaunting a big fried egg, a blouse with lots of shiny brass, and freshly pressed pinks weren't regulation for this sort of work. I skinned out of the pinks and into a pair of dark O. D. pants. I swapped the blouse for a field jacket without insignia and left the cap in the car. I was out of uniform, but the way I was going they'd overlook little details when they court-martialed me.

The first window I came to, on the ground floor, was unlocked. I could have raised it and climbed in easily, but I didn't. Sneaking into dark houses is the sort of thing I tend to put off, like going to the dentist. I circled the place and found quite a few unlocked windows. Just out of curiosity I decided to test the front door. I climbed over the porch railing and crept to the door. Its latch moved under my thumb. I shrugged. Everybody was away and the front door was unlocked. Things couldn't have been arranged more conveniently. Uh-huh. And maybe they had been arranged.

I backed away from the door and my foot skidded on something round and hard. I picked it up. Probably it wouldn't have bothered anybody but a guy with the reflexes of a rabbit. I stared at it and almost shuddered a shudder out of joint. It was a dead branch about an inch thick, neatly broken in the middle. Not the one I'd handled the night before. I held the thing like a person taking lesson number one in snake charming. Plain Mr. Jones had been practicing.

The branch was a plus sign which added up everything for me. The fat man and his friends suspected that somebody was unusually interested in the house on Q Street. Perhaps Arab had been prying around and had left traces, or perhaps they wondered why I was hanging around. At any rate, one of them, possibly Joey, had coaxed Renee to stage a picnic in Rock Creek Park. I crept off the porch and into the shelter of the shrubbery. I found myself starting to yawn. It had been a long day. I needed to be fresh and alert for my job. It was really my duty to go home and get a good night's sleep and quit bothering people who didn't want company. The trouble was that going home wouldn't settle anything... and I owed Plain Mr. Jones a few bad moments.

I made a wide circuit across the street, across the grounds of the big estate, and then back across the street to the side of his house away from Renee Fielding's place. His house was a Victorian type with gables at each end like ears pricked up to listen. No lights were showing. It wasn't likely that his house had been turned into a booby trap, too, and besides it wasn't a pleasant thought and the hell with it. I didn't have to worry about Plain Mr. Jones spotting me. There was enough space and shrubbery between the two houses to insure privacy. I walked onto his porch and immediately found one bit of information. A small brass plate beside the door announced:

JONES NEWSPAPER CLIPPING SERVICE

I tilted an eyebrow at the sign. It was an interesting business for him to be operating. I tested the front door and checked all the ground-floor windows. No intruders were expected or wanted; everything was locked. I didn't mind that. After my experience next door an unlocked downstairs window would probably have sent me screaming home. I climbed onto the porch rail and found that I could get a good grip on the roof. Surprisingly enough, I could still chin myself. I pulled up, hooked an elbow and then a knee over the edge, and finally made it. After that feat I deserved to find an unlocked second-floor window, and I did.

Before getting too involved in anything I carried out the operation known as securing one's lines of retreat. I went downstairs, unlocked the front and back doors and all the windows. If things got bad I was all set, as the Axis communiques say, to disengage the enemy in a rearward direction. Then I began snooping around.

After returning to the second floor I examined the room I had first entered. It was just like the downstairs setup except that no clippings were lying around. Only one, that is. I found it inside the leather reinforcing corner of a big desk-size blotter. I had been looking in the corners because people often tuck notes there, and then the notes slip in out of sight and are forgotten. The clipping was a short personal item, stamped with a date over a month old, and it had been clipped from a small-town weekly. It announced:

NO FURLOUGH FOR
BILL DWIGHT

Corp. Bill Dwight, son of Druggist and Mrs. Arthur Dwight, wrote his mother this week that he could not get home as expected because all furloughs were canceled for his outfit.

Mrs. Dwight had to call off a party arranged for him, much to the disappointment of several of our prettiest girls. Bill wrote that he is mighty fit and that his Second Armored Division will give a good account of itself whenever it is called to go into battle for freedom. Good luck, Bill, and here's hoping you get that visit home soon.

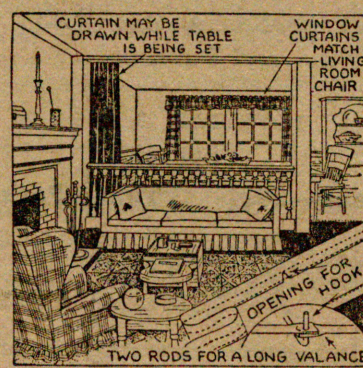

I tucked the clipping away in my billfold. There should have been a couple of twenties to keep it company instead of a pair of wrinkled dollar bills and a dry cleaner's ticket. In certain quarters a clipping like this would be worth plenty, although you might have to take payment in reichsmarks. A fortune teller wouldn't have to squint at Bill's palm to chance a prediction that he was about to make a trip across water. If the Second Armored were canceling all leaves it was either going on maneuvers or heading for a staging area. The Second Armored was pretty hot. It had been on lots of maneuvers and its next battle problem was likely to be for keeps.

There were a couple of bedrooms on the second floor, and a big side room fixed up as a study. The latter was furnished with a big mahogany desk, a leather couch, two upholstered chairs, and a couple of straight ones. A bust of Caesar scowled from a table; it was the same one which used to sneer down at me in my Episcopal Academy days as I murdered sight translation. One wall was paneled with books: history, psychology, Haushofer's study of geopolitics, Clausewitz on war, Mahan on sea power, Homer Lea's once-forgotten books on Jap and German militarism, de Gaulle's analysis of tank warfare (the one which the French General Staff had snooted but which had greatly influenced the Germans), Rommel's hard-hitting book on minor tactics, and the like.

On one shelf was a collection of leather-bound multigraphed letters. They were all datelined from Washington, addressed to "Dear Subscriber" and signed "Observer." They contained alleged inside dope on Washington politics, economic trends, tax plans, and predictions about national and world affairs. It was the type of news letter to which many businessmen subscribe. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Curtains to Match Chair Covering Will Create an Illusion of Space

By Ruth Wyeth Spears

IF YOU like the feeling of living in spacious rooms even though your home is small, the booklet Make Your Own Curtains shows you many useful tricks. How to have one big room for living and dining and still keep the confusion of table setting and the secret of the kitchen miracles away from expectant guests is one of many problems solved in this booklet.

A balustrade gives a sense of there being two rooms, but the two are drawn together and an illusion of space created by repeating the plaid of the chair for the curtains in the distance. The booklet also shows how to hang the curtain dividing the room so that it may be drawn with a switch. Diagrams are given for cutting and making all types of draperies, and fixtures required are clearly illustrated.

NOTE—The 32-page booklet Make Your Own Curtains is 15 cents postpaid. Send requests to:

• Farm folks know you can't trust winter weather. You have to be prepared for blizzards at any time. Highways that are clear today may be dangerous skidways tomorrow with fresh fallen snow hiding treacherous patches of ice. That's why WEED TIRE CHAINS are found on millions of farm cars and trucks.

This would be a bad winter in which to lose the use of your car or truck through a skid crash, for new vehicles are still scarce. So are new tires and good recaps. Better look after your tire chains right away. For when your wheels spin in snow or on ice, the heat quickly damages your tires.

ARE WE DOING OUR SHARE TO HELP RETURNING VETERANS?

Answer revealed in Dramatic, Romantic New Free Sound Movie.

Helping to solve a major local and national problem, the Sinclair Refining Company has produced a new sound movie dramatizing the responsibilities of civilians to returning veterans.

This film, "Heaven with a Fence Around It", will be shown free of charge at a Sinclair Farm meeting in Tinley Park on Nov. 26 at 8 p.m., in the school gymnasium, with the compliments of John Cole, Sinclair Agent at Tinley Park. It was prepared with the cooperation of government bureaus, practical farmers, businessmen and experts well acquainted with the problems of returning veterans.

"Heaven with a Fence Around It" is the romantic story of a young man who is typical of all veterans just back from the whirlpool of war. From the misery and filth of his battle experience emerged a clean dream. It was the dream of a farm of his own with fertile lands, a full root cellar, a comfortable home and independence and security. The dream looked like heaven with a fence around it, from a foxhole.

But, from the main street of a small community, it looked as if he were the one who was fenced in, instead of heaven.

His troubles were not because civilians were indifferent or unkind. They wanted to be helpful. But they didn't know he needed help. And if they did know, they didn't know how to help him.

They learned, however, as is shown in the movie. And seeing what they learned will help us all do a more patriotic job of helping returning veterans, according to John Cole, Sinclair Agent.

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3
by 2nd Lt. Elyne Conel

Hitting the Bottle: Sunday, November 18th at three in the afternoon, Mayor Kelly's very gracious and lovely wife, (ask the fellows who have visited Chicago's USO's, christened a forty passenger DC-4 four motored giant plane, the American Airline Flagship "Chicago") Mrs. Kelly, after two unsuccessful attempts at breaking the bottle on the plane's nose, grinned, rolled up the sleeves on her mink coat, cocked her gray hat trimmed with brown feathers, and with ladylike determination, swung with two hands like a big league ball player. She made it this time. The crowd cheered, balloons were released, and the band played.

This christening was of special interest and significance as it was a preliminary to the first civilian overseas flight from Chicago to London, England another big step up to put Chicago and Northern Illinois on Top as a World Air Center. Foreign Consuls were present from Mexico, Canada, Holland, France, Denmark, Norway and Ireland.

However, the crowd, in its enthusiasm to see the inside of the plane, got completely out of control. I'm surprised that American Airlines and the Chicago police force didn't have the simple foresight to keep the folks in line.

Aviation Table D'Hote: Aviation more than helps you wing your way. Food delicacies grown and raised in certain climates will reach you at their fresh and luscious best. The famous Flying Tigers are now flying air freight carrying large amounts of perishable fruits and vegetables East from California. And, in October the first commercial cargo glider pickup experiment was completed. A shipment of lobsters was the cargo. Gliders may cut shipping costs way down. Tables too, and other furniture can now be moved by airway moving service, at rates only 10 percent over truck service.

Yoo Hoo Rubinkam! A Cub plane last Saturday was almost within yelling distance of Rubinkam. The pilot, believing himself lost, made a landing in a farmer's field. His landing was swell (you can set a Cub down almost on a dime). But his face was red as the airplane trim, when he found out he was within six blocks of his field, practically lost in his own back yard. If they could cross a homing pigeon with a Piper they'd meet this chap's flying requirements. It'd come in handy once in a while for me, too.

Note to CAP members and friends of Neil A. Kingston. CAP Captain Kingston, Sq. 613-3 was called to Hornell, N. Y. last Thursday by the very serious illness of his mother.

Orchids to Edith Weinhaber "Eadie" (whose dad owns the string of famous Chicago Flower Shops) and her pal Alice Klimatis made their first solos in Cubs, at Rubinkam Airport. When asked if she liked being up in plane all alone, Eadie said something like an enthusiastic "Oh Heavens Yes!"

Eagle one day old, Goes South: CAP 2nd Lt. Elaine Smith got her Private Pilot's License at Rubinkam Airport on Armistice Day. Then, this brand new eagle headed South for the winter to be with her husband, Capt. Robert Smith.

Happy Thanksgiving!
That's All for now.

Former News-Bulletin Boy Home From The Pacific

Kenneth Stermer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Stermer of Mokena, who was home on furlough a few weeks ago is just 20 years old, and has seen quite a lot for a lad of that many years. But he is no lad anymore, he is a full grown man, even tho it was just a few years ago he was busy doing many things in this newspaper shop.

In tracing his steps during the past two years, we find he was inducted into service September 1943 and was placed in the Seabees and received 4 1/2 months training in this country.

On Feb. 23, 1944 he sailed on the U. S. Gen. Brooks ship and landed at Tarawa in the Gilbert Islands on March 11, 1944. On the way over, their ship was chased by an enemy submarine.

This group stayed for eleven months on Tarawa and were engaged during this time in constructing buildings and quonset huts. The natives helped them as much as they could. They were friendly and the army men got along nicely with these natives. There was vegetation on this island which cannot be said of many of the South Pacific islands. The Seabees followed the work of the armed forces who captured this island and drove out the Japs. But there were stragglers and one night as Kenneth was patrolling, he caught one of the Jap stragglers. One very important incident in capturing Tarawa, was the capturing of a million gallons of gasoline which the Japs had stored there. They used 67 octane motor gas and 87 for air craft, somewhat lower in count than that used by our country. This helped the gasoline situation greatly as they did not need to have any shipped to them for a long time from this country.

In January 1945 Kenneth and this group of Seabees left the Gilberts and sailed to Anawetok in the Marshall Islands where they stayed until they sailed for home Sept. 7, 1945. While at Anawetok, Kenneth flew one day with a friend on a bombing mission over Wake Island. They were in the air all day over that island. It was quite an experience.

The Seabees worked hard in their duties building and repairing. Kenneth drove and handled the large bulldozers etc. All during these many months their food was dehydrated variety and rations. As Kenneth only had two years of high school, at Bloom Township in Chicago Heights, he and one other of his group, applied for additional schooling under the G. I. Bill of Rights while on Anawetok, and waited nine months before they learned their application had been accepted. Kenneth could not finish before being called into service.

When they left Anawetok, they sailed in the U. S. Joshua Seny, a cargo boat for San Francisco, but when arriving there, they were ordered to Seattle, as San Francisco port was too crowded with ships. On their way home they experienced a severe storm at sea. They arrived at Seattle Sept. 24.

Kenneth has been transferred from the Seabees to the Navy now, and left Nov. 3rd, for Philadelphia, then were sent to Norfolk, Va., and then to Miami, Fla., on a patrol craft. Where he will be eventually be stationed, remains to be learned.

He wears the Asiatic Pacific ribbon, Expert Rifleman's ribbon and brought home many pictures and souvenirs.

Amateur Gardeners To Meet

Amateur gardeners are agog with plans for a large Fall Meeting and Forum at Hotel LaSalle, Wednesday, November 28, at 12:30 p.m., staged by the Chicago Horticultural Society and Garden Center. Late discoveries by some of the country's greatest scientists are to be divulged, some for the first time in popular form, that will soon revolutionize amateur gardening methods. Among other things they will tell in popular terms how amateurs can grow healthy, sturdy young flower or vegetable plants from either seed or cuttings in the darkest corner of their basement, or on a closet shelf and have these plants ready to set outdoors in the garden early in Spring.

Other late advances will be disclosed showing how artificial light can be used to make plants bloom or grow adequate roots without natural sunlight, the effect of light on the feeding of plants; and many other surprising developments that will make your garden more successful will be divulged.

The principal scientific representation will be made by Dr. Vernon T. Stoutmeyer of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who is in-charge of plant propagation at the famous Glenn Dael station of the Department in Maryland.

When the Japanese were conquering Pacific Islands and our supply of Quinine was threatened to be cut off, several thousand cuttings of Cinchona trees were shipped to Dr. Stoutmeyer from the Philippines with instructions to root them as fast as possible for shipment and planting in South America. In solving this problem he developed his present surprisingly simple and practical equipment. It now can be used by any amateur gardener to plant seeds or cuttings in his home and have them ready to plant outdoors in early Spring, just as healthy and sturdy as if they were grown in a well regulated greenhouse. Following Dr. Stoutmeyer's presentation, Dr. Alice P. Withrow of Purdue University, who with her husband has made startling discoveries on the effect of light on the absorption of foods by plants, will give an account of her work.

Tinley Club Subject of Feature Article

The Tinley Park Left-Handed Social Club one of the many successful Tinley Park organizations figured in the following feature article in last Sunday's Chicago Tribune:

Eighteen right-handed men, gathered in Saenger Hall in Tinley Park for their nightly convivial meeting, founded the Left-Handed Social Club.

The reason: (a) they wanted to have a dance, (b) they wanted means of financing the dance, (c) what quicker method of raising cash is there than fining a man for using his right hand during a left-handed club session?

Thus was the club started in March 1943. Altho its guiding principle—having fun—has been maintained, the club has expanded its activities now to include civic and patriotic activities. Its membership has grown to 75.

Originator of the idea, as far as can be ascertained from several charter members, seems to have been Charles Hollwedel, proprietor of the hall, commiserating silently but efficiently with his fellow men on their lack of the wherewithal to throw a party.

Aside from the financial angle, Hollwedel pointed out the practical value—that of making the members ambidextrous.

In this, they apparently were not too successful. Wesley Stemm, one of the charter members, mopped his brow and lit his cigar with his right hand as he prepared to relate some of the early endeavors in left-handedness by members.

There were probably a few signed eyebrows, he recalled, as the match in the left hand erred in its aim to light a cigaret, and, too, some refreshment dribbled down the weskit. And there was some talk of an engrossed scroll to the iron-nerved man who could manipulate both the lighted smoke and the filled glass at the same time with his left hand.

Financially, however, the venture was a success. In less than five weeks the club had enough fines from thotless right handers to have the dance. Stemm recalled.

Other men who fostered the idea back in 1943 were Larry Carlsen, Geo. Denner, Elmer and Edwin Feigel, George Ginder, Edwin and Emil Juergens, Herman Lehmann, Arthur Linsted, Marcus Monson, Frank Mancke, Edwin Meyer, Harry Piepenbrink, Lawrence Peterson, and Herbert Schmadeke.

The club was incorporated last July with the provision that six social affairs will be held each year. Admission is charged to one affair, the next is free. "Make it and spend it" is the slogan, Stemm said.

Among its extracurricular activities are contributions to the war fund, Boy Scouts, Tinley Park Memorial Fund and taking charge of the entertainment at the recent centennial celebration in the suburb.

Stemm, who is Tinley Park's mayor and a trustee of the club, said they hoped to erect a Christmas tree in the triangular space in front of Vogt's department store in Tinley Park. In the tradition of the club, the ornaments should be hung with the left hand. Stemm said.

ARMY TRANSPORTATION CORPS ISSUES CALL TO REPLACE COAST GUARD PERSONNEL

Five Thousand civilian crewman and ship's officers are needed by the Army Transportation Corps immediately to replace Coast Guard personnel now manning in the Pacific, was announced by Col. L. Sewell Morris commanding officer of the 6th Transportation zone.

Recruitment of these civilian sailors will make possible the discharge of an equal number of Coast Guardsmen now operating approximately 250 Transportation Corps vessels.

Those employed must possess officers' licenses or seamen's certificates. Depending on the individual's rating, he will be paid from $1,510 to $3,449 per year. In addition he will receive $2.50 daily area bonus while in the Pacific Theatre and full subsistence and quarters expense. Officers who have not received a Marine uniform allowance within the last five years will be issued $250 for this purpose. Rated seamen will be issued uniforms.

While there are no age limitations, men employed must be physically qualified for the tasks they are to perform.

Needed are 120 each of masters, engineers and first officers, (class C), ordinary seamen, messmen and chief cooks, 360 able bodied seamen and 240 oilers.

Officers and men recruited under this program will receive a 3-week indoctrination course before being assigned to sea duty.

Persons interested should apply to Major Grant L. Moran, TC Personnel Officer, Room 1416, 201 N. Wells St., Chicago.

X-rays penetrate solid steel—micro-photographs search out tiny flaws for elimination—precise instruments test the 85,000 different items used in railroading! From steel rails to car fabrics and materials—coal, oils, light bulbs, treated wood ties, rubber and paint, spikes and giant locomotives ... even water! All are subjected to the most rigid tests. An especially constructed room produces tropic heat or arctic cold so that temperature variations present no obstacles.

Scientists, with as fine equipment as ever was gathered together in a railroad laboratory, test everything purchased and used in ROCK ISLAND'S trains, and throughout its 8,000-mile network of rail lines, shops, stations and offices, to insure the highest standards of quality.

A Dynamometer Car measures the pull of locomotives out on the road ... a Rail Detector Car reveals any defects hidden within the rails ... an Electronics Car serves as a mobile laboratory in which radio and other electronic devices are tested for use in railroad operation.

ROCK ISLAND'S Railroad Testing Laboratories are now the newest and finest in America, for—as yesterday—and today—so tomorrow Rock Island's sole purpose is to provide the finest in transportation.

When Will Home Appliances Be Available To You?

Here are the answers—based on the most recent information we have received.

As you probably know, most appliance manufacturers have encountered problems in converting from war to peace production. It's not easy, for example, to convert from the production of radar devices to electric irons.

Fortunately, however, peacetime planning went ahead during the war. Experimentation and development work went ahead. And war-learned lessons in production and engineering were incorporated in appliance manufacturing plans. So today, with plans completed, your much improved home appliances are actually in production.

The information below is based on news given us by manufacturers. But we cannot, of course, guarantee that all home appliances will be available when planned. Material shortages or unforeseen factors may delay deliveries.

Ranges. Some range models—in limited quantities—are available at many neighborhood dealers now. Some may even be installed in time to cook that big Christmas dinner. Quantities should come in after the first of the year.

Refrigerators. The same situation that prevails for ranges holds true in regard to refrigerators.

Home Freezing Units may not be widely available before early Spring. Radical changes and improvements in design and construction have made much new manufacturing equipment necessary. But, if you're fortunate, you may be able to secure a Home Freezing Unit shortly after the first of the year.

Vacuum Cleaners are on the way to neighborhood dealers right now. And while some dealers may not have them available for immediate delivery, they should be a bit more plentiful within the next month.

Irons are available in limited quantities now. Automatic ironers will probably be available by the first of the year.

Home Heating Units—some heating contractors have limited supplies now; should be generally available by late Spring.

Washing Machines, in some cases, are now on display. First deliveries should be made by December.

Smaller Appliances—waffle irons, toasters, clocks, etc., may be available by the last of this year—in sufficient quantities to make it possible for them to be given as thoughtful Christmas gifts.

Since many factors, as noted above, may delay deliveries it is suggested that you stop in at your Public Service Store from time to time for the latest information on appliances. Public Service and dealers will always welcome your visit, and will answer your questions to the best of their ability.

IS THE WAR OVER?

It isn't for the wounded and maimed of our country's armed forces. They must still receive the best of care—and that takes money. So your country asks that you buy Victory Bonds. Remember, you help your country, the men who served their country, and yourself, when you make the sound investment of a Victory Bond Purchase.

MOKENA SCHOOL NEWS

First and Second Grade
We have gym twice a week and the last few times have held it out of doors. It consists of various types of relay races and games such as Dodge Ball and Drop the Handkerchief. When we hold gym indoors, we have tried a few somersaults and cartwheels which some have mastered especially well.

Grades 3 and 4

The attendance of grades 3 and 4 is greatly improved this year. There has been only 12 days absence and 1 case of tardiness since Sept. 4.

The fourth grade pupils have a very interesting geography book, "Peoples of Other Lands." Earlier this year a preliminary trip was taken across our own land over the Lincoln highway. The class then made a study of the Amazon basin, The Far North, the Far South, The Sahara Desert and Egypt. They are now finding the Lands of the Black People of Africa especially interesting.

The girls and boys of grades 3 and 4 are learning multiplication tables. The fourth grade pupils are now on their tables of 6 and grade 3 finished their tables of 3.

We are very sorry to see Carolyn Crawley leave the fourth grade. Carolyn is moving to St. Louis, Mo.

Pupils of the 3rd grade received a letter from Rogene Rogers, a former pupil of that grade. Rogene lives in Lenark, Ill.

The Jr. Red Cross of our school made 26 menu covers and 20 Tray covers for Halloween. The boys and girls are now working on Thanksgiving Menu covers for the Jr. Red Cross.

The Fifth and Sixth Grade News

The fifth and sixth grades will give a Thanksgiving program in the school gym Wednesday, November 21. There will be playlets, recitations, musical numbers and singing appropriate for the season. The time will be 2:30 o'clock. Wednesday, October 31 our room had a Halloween party. The students dressed in costume and marched to the other rooms where the students tried to guess who the wearer might be. Returning to our room we played many interesting games. JoAnn Rueckert, Helen Rueckert and David Carlson were the prize winners. Refreshments were served.

We have an added attraction in our room in the form of "Andy" and "Pandy" two frisky gold fish which were won by Merlyn Larson at the school carnival. Merlyn says we may keep these two lively fellows until school closes for the summer.

Three fifth grade girls have reason to be proud as they have nine perfect spelling units. The lucky young ladies are Phyllis Gaddis, DeJores Cooper and Mary Anna Rinke.

Jr. High School News

The enrollment in seventh and eighth grades is 15 girls and 17 boys. A total of 120 pupils in the school. We are glad to welcome the many new families to Mokena.

Activities for American Education Week for our room were themes, oral book reports from our Reading Circle List and a health movie on Wednesday.

WHETHER or not he is the greatest, Harry Gilmer of Alabama is beyond any argument the most amazing back that football can show today.

Doc Blanchard, army's brilliant back, weighs 205 pounds and can run the 100 in 10 flat.

Glenn Davis, another army brilliant, 180 pounds, is the fastest man in football.

Harry Gilmer, barely 19 years old, weighs 158 pounds and he has no such speed as either Blanchard or Davis can show. And yet I saw him pass and run Alabama into 26 points against Duke last winter, while tackling all over the field.

Grantland Rice

This fall he threw three touchdowns passes against a strong L. S. U. team to carry Alabama into a 26 to 7 victory over the team that wrecked Georgia. He then passed and ran Tennessee dizzy to win by 25 to 7.

Gilmer has already proved himself to be one of the best passers of all time. I'd rank him as the greatest passer in football today, college or pro. But the most amazing part of this 158-pound kid is that he is one of the best all-over-the-field tacklers you'll see in many years, that he is a fine ball carrier who is not only elusive but who can hold his feet with a 190-pound back. Also that he is one of the most accurate kickers in the game today.

Batters Big Linesmen

Against Tennessee he kicked out of bounds on the Volunteers' 4-yard line. The play was called back. On his second shot Gilmer again kicked out on the 4-yard line. Also against the big forward walls of L. S. U. and Tennessee he drove his way through the lines as well as he cut around the flanks, carrying 200-pounds for 4 and 5 extra yards.

How often do you see a star passer, a fine ball carrier and a good kicker starring in a defensive role? After the Duke-Sugar Bowl game last winter I ran into Tom Davis, Duke's fast, 190-pound back.

"Gilmer?" he said. "He is no 158-pounder. He must have nailed me 10 times today, and I thought he was going to tear me apart." But 158 to 160 is Gilmer's weight, with which he does the job of four men. For example, in three big games against Duke, L. S. U. and Tennessee, he was largely responsible for the 77 points Alabama scored.

Gilmer's three main ingredients are poise, timing and skill. The Alabama star has thin shoulders, a rather thin chest, but he also has a pair of powerful legs and two big, strong hands.

Knocking on wood for the sake of Frank Thomas, he is also as durable as hickory. He can handle a heavy battering without slowing down. The kid is as cold as an iceberg. You never see him rattled or hurried. He has a pair of blue-gray eyes that get the picture before him in a flash—even when he is in mid-air throwing a pass. Handling the ball from center on a running or a passing play, he always seems to be taking his time, and yet he gets the ball away or starts his run without any waste of time.

Coolness and Timing

Frank Thomas tells me that no breaks of the game ever upset him in the least. "I've never seen any one," Thomas says, "who knows better exactly what to do under all conditions. He can whip a bullet pass as Baugh does, or give you a 50-yard arm throw of the Luckman type. And he rarely misses his target. If he ever made a single bad or wild pass, I never saw it. But it is his coolness, his timing, his durability that makes his skill stand out. He throws his shorter passes with a wrist flip that can't be intercepted. And he can also nail a receiver 50 yards away, after leaving his feet for the jump."

While Gilmer has been a leading factor in carrying Alabama to victory, he isn't the only football player Frank Thomas has on his squad. Big Mancha, one of the best centers in football, heads a strong, fast charging line. Tew and Hodges are two hard running backs. This is the best team Alabama has sent into action in some years, and Alabama has had more than her share of winning games and winning years. Also such stars as Don Hutson, Pooley Hubert, Mack Brown, Howell, Hurry Cain, Jenkins, Whitmire and now Gilmer and Mancha.

Fumbling All Around

If you happen to look over various accounts of football games around the map you will run into stories of constant fumbling. This is partly due to the shape of the modern football which is fashioned largely for a passing attack. It is built more like a short javelin than anything else, being narrow and pointed. A fumble, recovered by the other side, usually costs from 40 to 50 yards. The shape of the ball is at least a big part of the epidemic.

Few Continue Insurance

Concerned with the large percentage of veterans who are not converting their national service life insurance into permanent insurance, or with maintaining their policies in present form, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Veterans' administration director, recently held a meeting with a joint committee of the American Life convention and the Life Insurance Association of America to lay plans for a nation-wide educational campaign on the subject.

"Recent figures indicate that only one out of five veterans discharged is continuing his term policy or is converting it into one of the three types of permanent insurance offered," General Bradley said.

This figure, the committee was told, is approximately three times the ratio experienced after the last war.

A committee of insurance men headed by Alexander Patterson, executive vice president of the Mutual Life Insurance company, of New York, assured General Bradley that the committee "is prepared to go all-out to co-operate with you in your program to present to the veteran the many advantages of maintaining his national service life insurance policy."

Questions and Answers

Q. My husband, a veteran of World War I is sick and disabled and about four months ago put in a disability claim and has not heard from it. Will they write and tell him whether he is eligible for pay or not? —Mrs. W. J. G., Lebanon, Va.

A. Yes, he will no doubt hear from the Veterans administration. If he does not soon, write again to the nearest regional office of the Veterans administration.

Q. My 18-year-old brother is now entering the army. How much time will he have to spend in the service or has there been a definite length of time decided upon. If a soldier re-enlists in the army, then decides within 20 days that he wants a discharge, can he get it? —Mrs. L. J., Pontotoc, Miss.

A. The answer to your first question is that there has been no definite time decided for 18-year-olds in the army. To the second question, the answer is No.

Q. My husband has been in service since February, 1945. He is 31 years old and he has never had any training. Will there be any chance of him getting out soon? He was classified in F-4 and put in A-1. —A reader, Remlap, Ala.

A. Indications are that your husband was inducted as a replacement and that he may be in limited service, but the chances of his early discharge are not good.

Q. How can I get medical care, other than maternity care, for a soldier's family? I have three children who must have medical care and I am under a doctor's care myself. —Mrs. W. R., Wilmington, Ill.

A. Write to the nearest army medical center, or apply to your local Red Cross and they may advise you.

Q. What does the navy get discharge points for? Do they get any points for battle stars or citations? —Mrs. A. A., Dennison, Ohio.

A. Under present regulations navy discharge points are awarded only as follows: One-half point for each year of age; one-half point for each month of active service; one-quarter point for each month of sea duty; ten points for dependency. Forty-one points are necessary for discharge. Any navy man with three children is eligible for discharge.

Q. My husband was told when entering the service that he would be discharged six months after the war. Will he get out by then or will he have to stay in the army until he has enough points? —L. L., Gloster, Miss.

A. The chances are he will have to stay until he is eligible for discharge under the point system. The war is not officially ended until declared so by proclamation of the President or by congress.

Q. If a man is sent to the Pacific for occupation, how long will he have to stay? —Mrs. K. C., Dennison, Ohio.

A. His service would depend entirely upon the number of points he has earned and the nature of his service.

Q. My husband, a veteran of World War I, did not receive his transportation home after being honorably discharged. Can he still collect his transportation? —Mrs. L. D., St. Maries, Idaho.

A. It is 25 years late, but you might write to the office of the Adjutant General, War department.

Q. How long is it permissible for a discharged soldier to wear a full uniform after arriving home? —M. E. T., Onokama, Mich.

A. The regulations provide a soldier may wear his uniform up to 90 days after his discharge.

CHRISTIANS WORKING TOGETHER IN THE COMMUNITY

LESSON TEXT: John 17:20-23; Acts 15:22-29.
GOLDEN TEXT: We are laborers together with God.—1 Corinthians 3:9.

Unity within the Church is God's plan and purpose, but that does not mean that some man-made plans for unity are either scriptural or desirable. There is much pressure being exerted now to unite the Church on the basis of a vast ecclesiastical organization, quite apart from any doctrinal or spiritual unity.

Such unity was not in our Lord's mind. He wants spiritual unity, and in such fellowship the Church will find its only real bond of united life and action.

I. Unity in Spirit (John 17:20-23).
Here we enter the veritable holy of holies of Scripture. Facing the time of His departure and death, the Lord prayed for those who believed, or would believe (v. 20) on Him.

What was His prayer? That they should be one with the Father, with Him, and with one another. This had to be accomplished while they remained in this wicked world (see John 17:13-16). How? By the cleansing and sanctifying work of the truth.

The Word of God—the Bible—is the instrument used by the Holy Spirit in this work of sanctification. Small wonder that there is little holiness and spiritual unity when the Word has so little opportunity to touch and to cleanse. Reader, do you study God's Word?

Such separation to God will result in real spiritual unity between those of all denominations and creeds. It is not some artificial thing to be put on from the outside. It comes from the heart of man and reaches out into his life and into the lives of others.

II. Unity in Action (Acts 15:22-27).
Satan tried to thwart the missionary efforts of the Church at the very outset by starting a doctrinal controversy.

Although the first council at Jerusalem (Acts 11) had decided that "to the Gentiles also hath God granted repentance unto life," the question did not stay settled, for there were persistent Judaizing teachers who now contended that even though the Gentiles could be saved, they had to come into the church by way of Judaism and first fulfill the Jewish rite of circumcision.

The story of how this vital and fundamental question came up is found in the early verses of Acts 15. The entire future of the gospel ministry was in a sense dependent on the solution of this problem. Christianity is the only religious faith in the world that presents justification by grace as the way of redemption; all others follow (more or less) the path of salvation by works.

The question now was: Shall works of the law be mingled with grace? Can Jesus Christ alone save men, or is salvation through Jesus Christ plus something else?

How was such a serious question to be settled? Should argument and strife be permitted to go on until the stronger party prevailed? Better judgment indicated the desirability of a Christian method of settlement.

The final decision of the council is sent not only by Paul and Barnabas, but also by a committee from Jerusalem, a gracious gesture of fellowship.

As a matter of record (a wise procedure in such a case), a letter was sent which, after addressing the Gentiles as "brethren," reviewed the history of the matter and then, without mentioning circumcision at all, put upon the Gentiles "no greater burden than the necessary things." And what were those? Those things which relate to purity of life as those who were enjoying Christian liberty. The law of Moses need not be kept as a ground of salvation. They were saved by grace. But grace can never be the cloak of careless living, nor can liberty in Christ be interpreted as license to live in sin. We are set free in Christ, not that we may sin, but that we may "go and sin no more."

III. Unity in Doctrine (Acts 15:28, 29).

In non-essentials we should exercise toward other believers the greatest love and consideration. Men have a right to differences of opinion, and must follow the dictates of their own consciences. Let us not be betrayed into controversy on such matters.

There are certain foundation doctrines which must be held if a church is to be Christian; concerning these we stand together. There is a faith for which we are earnestly "contending" (Jude 3). We are never, even on the grounds of supposed courtesy, to give aid and comfort to false teachers (II John 9-11). Kindly, tactfully, but definitely the Christian Church must stand true to its doctrinal convictions, standing united against an unbelieving world, and if need be, an unbelieving religious world.

Nail a piece of molding in contrasting color to the edge of the shelves of your linen closet for an enhancing effect.

Although plywood is an excellent base for linoleum it is not satisfactory as a flooring material.

Air your shoes every time you take them off and keep them in a closet where there is plenty of air. Keeps them from cracking. Give them a rest now and then too.

RUBBER

Twenty-five years ago passenger cars used only three to five pounds of rubber, not counting tires. Today the average car contains fifty pounds of rubber products.

More than half of all the estimated 100 million automobile wheels in America are now rolling on synthetic rubber.

Nanking University is experimenting with a new type of seed with a view to growing rubber in some of the arid regions of China.

New automobiles built this year will be delivered without spare tires.
